

A glut of private speculative issues exist for islands across the United Kingdom which do not have regular postal service, starting with Lundy Island in 1929. In more recent years, many of these issues have been promulgated by stamp dealers that sell fanciful pictorial stamps named after uninhabited rocks to worldwide collectors. A particularly infamous issue was the island of Eynhollow (Scotland) whose bogus stamps were produced by the convicted philatelic fraudster Clive Feigenbaum (with permission from the laird) and distributed globally. Given the profusion of newer lower quality "art" stamps with the advent of desktop publishing, it is unlikely that a list could be completed, but I am always happy to find new island emissions which were actually produced as postage stamps.
